Context of the Executive Plan

The Executive Plan for the National Priorities for Strengthening the Gender-Based Violence, Domestic Violence, and Child Protection Regulations, hereafter “Executive Plan,” is a continuation of existing procedures towards setting an implementation framework for the national priorities matrix for strengthening the family protection system at the national level, hereafter “National Priorities,” that was approved by the Prime Minister, and is in keeping with the national team for family protection’s role, hereafter “National Team,” in overseeing the implementation of the National Priorities, as contained in the National Team’s internal bylaw No. 33 of 2016. The matrix of National Priorities was developed to strengthen the family protection system within an implementation mechanism that can translate these priorities into actionable activities and set a clear follow-up framework for them. The National Council for Family Affairs, in partnership with the United Nations Fund, updated the matrix based on the results of the regional survey conducted by the United Nations Population Fund in accordance with the "Essential Services Package" program, which aims to provide greater access to a coordinated set of essential and quality multi-sectoral services in the sectors of health, social services, and justice and policing for all those subject to gender-based violence. These Priorities were then developed into an Executive Plan titled “Executive Plan for the National Priorities for Strengthening the Gender-Based Violence, Domestic Violence and Child Protection Regulations” for the years (2021-2023). This Plan includes:

- Implementation activities for each sector that are classified according to seven main areas: human resources, capacity building, service improvement, logistical support, legislation and policies, partnership and coordination, and awareness.
- The primary and secondary stakeholders
- Timeframe
- Quantitative and qualitative performance indicators

Preparation Methodology of the Executive Plan

The methodology for preparing the Executive Plan aimed to reflect the participatory approach between government institutions, civil society organizations, international organizations, and donors to ensure the quality of coordination and thus achieve a more consistent response.

As a pre-preparation phase for the Executive Plan, UNFPA Jordan has produced a report “Review of Health, Justice and Police, and Social Essential Services for Women and Girls victims/survivors of Violence in Jordan” in 2019 as part of the Joint Global Programme on Essential Services for Women and Girls Subject to Violence, which was launched by UNFPA with participation of UNWOMEN, WHO, UNDP and UNODC. The report was first validated with members of the National Team for Family protection and other Stakeholders including relevant UN Agencies, members of the GBV SWG including civil society organizations, UNFPA and Participating UN Agencies continued introducing ESP to key stakeholders through national workshops and bilateral meetings with GBV partners and supported key GBV advocates for ESP rollout. In continuation of these efforts, the UNFPA Jordan Country Office conducted "rollout Workshop to present the ESP" at 2019 in order to share the findings and recommendations of the regional review pertinent to Jordan and facilitate development of a skeleton multi-sectoral action plan guiding the way forward in rolling the ESP in the three sectors in Jordan.

The methodology included several qualitative tools used to define the general context and identify available health, justice and policing, and social services for violence cases, in addition to bolstering the validation of relevant reports and workshops’ outcomes, building consensus on the recommendations among all stakeholders, determining national priorities and designing activities in line with the capabilities and specializations of each stakeholder, whether primary or secondary.

Methodology Implementation and Tools

First: Literature Review of relevant reports and documents: Several related strategies were reviewed, including the National Social Protection Strategy 2019-2025; the National Strategy for Empowering Women in Jordan; and the Jordanian Response Plan, in addition to many documents and reports, including: the National Team regulations issued in the Official Gazette 2016; The shelter regulations for women at risk in 2016; The family protection shelter regulations; The accreditation and quality control standards for services provided to domestic violence cases 2014; The Family Violence Protection Law; Policies and guidelines for prevention and response to cases of violence in Jordan; An overview of the effects of COVID-19 on Women and Girls' Rights and Sexual and Reproductive Health, Family Dispute Resolution Regulations; COVID-19 and Gender in Jordan: Immediate Recommendations for Planning and Response in Jordan; Report on Strengthening National Coordination Mechanisms in the Field of Protection from Gender-Based Violence Workshops, Domestic Violence and Child Protection essential services package for girls and women subjected to violence; and a list of National Priorities prepared by the National Team.

Second: Interview design: In cooperation with the National Council for Family Affairs, relevant stakeholders were identified and contacted to hold interviews, either in person or virtually for social distancing purposes, or since some of the international and national stakeholders' representatives were outside of Jordan.

Third: The interview schedule was designed and prepared across several main and sub-themes to ensure meeting the interviews' objectives and maintaining the privacy of each interviewee and their scope of work, using targeted discussion guides.

Fourth: 17 one-to-one interviews were held with stakeholders and experts, which included representatives of governmental and non-governmental institutions, international institutions, international organizations, and relevant donors (Interview ground rules were observed by requesting formal consent to record the interviews, and clarifying the purpose of the interview and the management process of the data collected at the interview).

Fifth: The interviews were transcribed in Arabic, and some in English. The transcribed data were then classified, tabulated, and developed into a matrix based on the main interview questions, which were designed specifically for this purpose through discussions between the teams in the National Council for Family Affairs and the United Nations Population Fund.

Sixth: The data analysis was conducted and then used to assess the National Priorities in terms of content, language, and conformity with the national and local context, in order for them to better contribute to defining the activities of the executive plan.

Seventh: A comparative sectoral analysis matrix was prepared for all the recommendations made in the previous workshops, the disclosure of National Priorities, and the outcomes of the interviews.

Eighth: The activities of the Plan were designed based on the National Priorities and recommendations of the relevant authorities according to each sector, accompanied by a timeframe, performance indicators, key stakeholders, and supporting parties. (The key stakeholders are those responsible for implementing the activity, and the supporting parties are those whose role is to help complete the implementation of the activity).

Ninth: The Executive Plan was presented to the National Team, and their feedback was received, amended, approved, and presented to the international and UN organizations represented by the sub-working groups of the United Nations and approved by them.

Tenth: The Executive Plan was approved by the National Team and recommended that it be submitted to the Prime Minister in order for it to be circulated among relevant institutions and followed, and to instruct the Ministry of Planning to circulate it among international institutions and donors to place it among the funding priorities of its programs.

Eleven: Coinciding with preparing the Plan and setting procedures for its approval by the Prime Ministry, the Ministry of Social Development formed a committee headed by the Secretary-General of the Ministry of Social Development and comprised of several government agencies (according to Annex No. (4)) with the aim of developing a national plan for a multi-sectoral response to prevent violence with a comprehensive approach that contributes to reducing violence and promoting human rights and to ensure that there is no duplication between programs and plans. The committee members reviewed, discussed, and made observations on the Plan with the aim of adopting it as a national plan for a multi-sectoral response to prevent violence. Based on the committee members' review of the Executive Plan and their feedback, it was approved in its final form, and it will be a governmental plan to confront patterns of violence based on gender.

Twelve: The Executive Plan was submitted to the Cabinet for approval and adoption at the national level.

Thirteen: The Cabinet decided by its Resolution No. (3640) issued by virtue of its letter No. 3/11/1/36962 dated 12/9/2021 to approve and circulate the Plan and assign all concerned parties to include the activities of the Plan related to its work within its annual plan for the coming years.

Structure of the Executive plan

Monitoring, Evaluation, and Reporting

The monitoring and evaluation process are one of the most important tools of the Executive Plan management mechanism as it enhances the optimal use of resources and encourages credibility and accountability. The monitoring and evaluation part of this Plan aims to define the responsibilities for managing and coordinating the monitoring and evaluation activities. The follow-up and evaluation system is mainly based on the evidence and sources of verification that stakeholders rely on. The system takes into account what results should be monitored, how to monitor them, and how and when to use them

To ensure that data is used to support planning, reporting, and decision-making, the National Team will continuously evaluate stakeholders' monitoring and evaluation levels, which in turn will compile reports on the implementation of activities and other qualitative and quantitative data.

The Monitoring and Evaluation Framework provides the following tools for monitoring compliance with the plan:

1. An annual monitoring and evaluation tool for the Executive Plan.
2. Periodic completion reports matrix

Benefits of monitoring and evaluation

The need for monitoring and evaluation arises from the following imperatives:

- Review accomplishments of the proposed activities in the Executive Plan and identify the reasons and justifications behind the failure to achieve some goals in different sectors
- Identify the impact of implementing the Executive Plan on violence cases
- Bolster strengths and repurpose them in developing the protection regulation
- Determine the responsibilities related to implementation and reviewing the performance of the implementers
- Inform stakeholders of what needs to be corrected or adjusted to make sure activities are going as planned.

Monitoring and Evaluation Responsibilities

To ensure the success and effectiveness of monitoring and evaluation of the Executive Plan, the National Team must identify the party responsible for implementing, monitoring and supporting the activities of all the stakeholders mentioned in the plan. This entails identifying the following:

- Who is responsible for M&E?
- Who collects the information?
- What is the scope of work of each team or individual?
- What tools do they use to communicate?
- How does information flow from the various stakeholders to the National Team?

Information required for the monitoring and evaluation process

The monitoring and evaluation framework for the Executive Plan contains a number of elements, namely:

1. Indicators

- a. Quantitative indicators: for example: the number of emergency ambulance centers that have trained doctors
- b. Qualitative indicators: for example: the availability of a document outlining criteria for granting financial incentives

2. Indicators Definition: This part defines the framework and context of the various indicators

3. Verification sources: the various tools used to verify the implementation of different activities, which vary according to the nature of the indicator, the implementing agency, the sensitivity of information sharing

4. Periodicity of information/data collection: This part defines the timeframe of the process of collecting information (annually, semi-annually).

5. Expected risks: This part identifies the factors that may limit the effectiveness of implementation, monitoring and evaluation.

The monitoring and evaluation document were divided according to the sectors and components included in the Executive Plan.

The Framework for approving and allocating funding

The National Council for Family Affairs team, together with the advisory team, took several measures to prepare the Executive Plan and present it to the National Team, the main and sub-working groups and international organizations.

First: Review the final draft of the plan

Second: Share the plan with the team at the United Nations Population Fund and relevant sister UN agencies involved in the ESP to review, give feedback, and coordinate with the main and sub-working groups

Third: Share the plan with the National Team to review, take notes, and approve the plan in its final form and then share it with international organizations represented in the sub-working groups of the United Nations.

Fourth: Launch the Executive Plan in its final form.

Upon the approval of the Executive Plan in its final form by all parties, several measures will be taken, including allocating funding through the following:

First: Present the Executive Plan to all international organizations and donors interested in reducing violence.

Second: Circulate the Plan among institutions to integrate the Plan's activities into their work as set in their annual plans.

Third: Appoint a liaison officer to coordinate between the members of the National Team and the main and sub-groups and ensure follow-up with the implementation of activities and evaluation of the progress of work
